Consumer Sentiment: Continued Rebound

Bottom Line: After hitting record lows in June, consumer sentiment continued to rebound, according to the preliminary August reading of the University of Michigan survey. Led by future expectations, the index measuring how consumers feel about their prospects for the next year inched above the 2nd Quarter average. Moreover, lower energy prices left consumers feeling a bit less uncertain about the inflation outlook. Still, consumers continue to feel less wealthy as they burn savings to meet their demand for essential goods and struggle to gain pay increases quickly enough to make ends meet. But even just a modest decline in prices at the pump is leaving them feel a bit better.
